Perfect pairings

Red Wine & Dark Chocolate with Fleur de Sel

A strong red wine with soft tannins develops perfectly on the palate when paired with a piece of dark chocolate with a hint of salt. The rule is, the more full-bodied the wine, the higher the percentage of cocoa in the chocolate.

Whisky & Blue Cheese

The salty, tangy creaminess of the cheese particularly accentuates the full character of bold single malts. BBQ evening tip: burger with gorgonzola and a whisky-and-onion chutney.

White Wine & Truffle Popcorn

This pairing is becoming a favourite in stylish wine bars. The wine should be fresh, with a mineral character, and have enough depth to hold its own against the earthy truffle flavours.

Champagne & Fried Foods

Can you drink a fine sparkling wine with fried chicken or tempura? Absolutely! The acidity and perlage of the Champagne penetrate the oil and refresh the palate. It's all the rage on the fine dining scene!

Gin & Sushi

A gin with fresh, herbal or citrusy notes perfectly complements the delicate nuances of sushi and provides a balanced taste experience. Sometimes, it's even better than sake!

Live life to the fullest and try something new this summer. This season's food pairing trends offer real gourmet adventures, even within the most familiar worlds of flavour. Have fun trying them out!

The Lufthansa Group Hangar One at Frankfurt airport is a new place for dialogue, inspiration and collaboration.

As a conference and visitor centre, it unites employees, customers, partners and aviation enthusiasts, bringing the pioneering spirit of Lufthansa to life in a new way.

Two icons of the company's history are at the heart of Hangar One: the Junkers Ju 52 and the legendary Lockheed Super Star. Together with selected exhibits, they tell the story of the company's beginnings, technical innovations and responsibility. An open gallery and a glazed façade make this history visible from both inside and out.

On the company's 100th anniversary, Lufthansa Group Hangar One will reflect a shared journey. The anniversary slogan "We are the Journey" represents the people behind the brand: the employees, passengers and fans who have accompanied us over the past century – and continue to do so today.

Over the years, Lufthansa has helped shape the evolution of air travel – from the first all-metal aircraft to its transatlantic debut, introducing new travel classes and achieving technical milestones along the way.

This pioneering spirit was evident not just in range and technology, but also in service, design and new role models – from the on-board restaurant of the 1950s and lounges on the upper deck to the first female pilots in the cockpit. From great adventures emerged the new normal, which continues to define Lufthansa today.

The Junkers Ju 52, known affectionately as “Auntie Ju”, was a symbol of aviation history and shaped Lufthansa operations for decades. Evolving from the original single-engine design to the more robust, three-engine aircraft, it proved its worth through reliability, ease of maintenance and cost-efficient operation.

Dining in style

Inspired by the corrugated design of the iconic Ju 52, WMF cutlery was a defining feature of Lufthansa First Class and Senator Lounges for many years. So popular that it often made its way from the aircraft into passengers' cutlery drawers at home, it is now being reissued in commemoration of the era.

On 1 April 1955, Lufthansa returned to the skies above Germany. Ten years after the end of the Second World War, flags were raised again at Frankfurt airport and a new chapter of civil aviation began. A simple leaflet marked the commencement of domestic scheduled services – initially four weekday connections, made possible by special authorisation from the Allied powers.

At the same time, Convair aircraft in Hamburg and Munich were taking off for their first scheduled flights. Hamburg, in particular, became a symbol of this new beginning, serving as the young airline's operational hub and the starting point for the next major step. In mid-May, Lufthansa resumed European services. And just a few weeks later came the transatlantic leap.

On 8 June 1955, a Lockheed Super Constellation began its journey from Hamburg to New York. Flying via Düsseldorf, Shannon in western Ireland and Iceland, the 17-hour flight, operated by an all-German crew, marked Lufthansa's first direct service from Germany to the USA in many years. The "Super Connie", one of the most advanced long-haul aircraft of its time, paved the way for the Lockheed Super Star. From March 1957, Lufthansa used this aircraft on non-stop services to New York and introduced the Senator Class, the airline's most exclusive form of travel.

These developments marked Lufthansa's permanent return to the international stage. What began in 1955 with 74,000 passengers and a limited number of routes gradually evolved into a global network driven by pioneering spirit, technical development and the aspiration to make flying a part of everyday life.

In the late 1950s and early 1960s, flying became a spectacle. The appearances of international film stars such as Gina Lollobrigida, Joan Crawford, Maria Callas and Sophia Loren at German airports shaped the image of a new and glamorous era of travel. Lufthansa was part of this moment, playing host to an age in which arrivals and departures themselves became events.

First Class Senator Service (1958)

The introduction of the First Class Senator Service

Lufthansa embodied an era, in which flying itself became an experience. With the introduction of the Senator Service in 1958, the airline brought this aspiration into the cabin. This First Class service created an exclusive travel experience that went far beyond transportation. A lounge, personal service and à-la-carte dining made the aircraft a place of connection, characterised by the spirit of an age in which flying was done in style.

With the addition of the Lockheed Super Star to its fleet, Lufthansa introduced the Senator Class as its most exclusive form of travel in 1957. At the same time, Super Constellation aircraft were increasingly being used on medium-haul routes, including services to Cairo from November 1958. Lufthansa also focused early on innovations in training, introducing flight simulators for the Super Constellation in 1957 – aspiring to standards of safety and precision that are still core tenets of pilot training to this day.

On 2 March 1960, the first jet aircraft in Lufthansa livery – a brand-new Boeing 707 freshly delivered from the factory in Seattle – landed at Hamburg airport. The arrival marked the beginning of commercial jet travel at Lufthansa and ushered in a new era that would fundamentally transform flight ranges and travel times.

With the advent of wide-bodied aircraft, Lufthansa introduced a new uniform for its flight attendants on 1 April 1970. Created by Berlin-based fashion designer Werner Machnik, it combined clean lines with bright colours in yellow and blue, reflecting a serious yet contemporary style.

New aircraft types such as the Airbus A300 and A310 helped expand the route network. The first non-stop flight from Frankfurt to Los Angeles in 1977 set new standards in long-haul travel. A380

With the addition of the first Airbus A380, the era of wide-bodied aircraft at Lufthansa took on a new dimension. The Mega-Airbus, with a wingspan of almost 80 metres, became the new flagship of Lufthansa's fleet and set new standards in terms of size and comfort. After the maiden flight of an A380 intended for Lufthansa in October 2009, the first scheduled landing took place on 2 June 2010 in Munich – arriving from Los Angeles – and marked the beginning of Lufthansa's regular A380 service.

Allegris

With Lufthansa Allegris, the airline introduced a carefully designed travel experience that redefines comfort across all classes. The concept focuses on flexibility, comfort and privacy, made possible by innovative seating, high-quality materials and modern technology. The new product was introduced on 1 May 2024 on board an Airbus A350-900.

Off to

The anniversary fleet makes history visible. With a special livery and an iconic design, Lufthansa brings the past and the future together.

The deep-blue fuselage is dominated by a white crane, whose wings merge seamlessly with the wings of the aircraft. The design is completed with the anniversary number "100" and the years "1926 | 2026", which are visible on the fuselage and the underside of the aircraft. The anniversary fleet is led by the brand-new Boeing 787-9

"Berlin", which arrived in Frankfurt in December 2025. Other aircraft receiving the anniversary livery include an Airbus A380, an Airbus A350-1000, an Airbus A350-900, an Airbus A320 and a Boeing 747-8. The new-look fleet will be gradually rolled out – completion is expected by autumn 2026.

Off the beaten track

Three travel trends that offer more than just a great photo opportunity

Wide horizons, rugged landscapes and quiet awe – current trend destinations show that travel is again becoming calmer, more conscious and, at the same time, more intense. Far from the crowded beaches and bustling cities, you'll find stories, encounters and experiences that truly stay with you.

Newfoundland – welcome to solitude

The island territory of Canada combines the Northern wilderness with local culture and warm hospitality. Here, travellers can expect vastness, wind, coasts dotted with colourful fishing villages and stories that have been passed down for generations.

Bhutan – the Kingdom of Happiness

Trekking in the Himalayas, remote monasteries, a very particular way of life and gorgeous views. In this secluded kingdom in the Himalayas, spectacular landscapes meet sustainable tourism and Buddhist culture.

Chile – a land of contrasts

The spectacular diversity of its landscape – from Atacama, the world's driest desert, to the ice-blue glaciers of Patagonia – makes Chile a dream destination for adventurous outdoor fans and tranquility seekers.

Screen-free zone

Smartphones, tablets, computers, television – screens are omnipresent in our daily lives. Therefore, integrating little “offline islands” into everyday family life can be very effective. There’s lots of inspiration in our search-and-find picture.

“Digital Detox” hidden object game
Where are the ball, snorkel and the scooter?

To ensure that the digital detox includes the whole family, the same rules apply to everyone. For example, no phones at the dining table and no screens an hour before bedtime. This puts conversation front and centre again and gives your mind and eyes a break. Consequently, this reduces stress and helps you sleep better. Why not plan an entire digital detox day with activities for all the family? You’ll soon see how difficult it is to go for a few hours without looking at your phone. But hang on in there together – it’s worth it! Have fun experimenting!

Get fit!

Train hard, recover smart

After a workout, your body needs time to recuperate. Treat yourself to the perfect recovery with massage rollers, guns and mats. Release tension, stimulate circulation, and speed up recovery – these specialised tools complete your training. For greater well-being, less muscle ache and an extra helping of self-care.

Active, full of energy and in peak form – scan the QR code and discover products for ideal recovery.

Moments of mindfulness on the mat
A mat is more than something to lie on – it creates space for a conscious transition between activity and recovery.

Relax!

Find balance and strengthen your core
A wobble board helps you build stability. The subtle compensatory movements you make when balancing train the deep muscles as well as your coordination and concentration – for mindful moments full of focus and body awareness.

Train smart with resistance bands
Gentle tension instead of force. Resistance bands extend movements and make stretching more controlled and precise.

Warm-up deluxe
Many pro athletes use massage guns before they train. Of course, this doesn't replace the essential warm-up, but it can help improve mobility.
